New York, New York – November 1, 2018 Kohn Pedersen Fox Associates (KPF) is pleased to announce the opening of new representative offices in San Francisco, Berlin, and Singapore. These outposts will help the global practice service an exciting series of current projects, new commissions, and imminent endeavors. The firm’s work in these regions fulfills the highest aspirations of KPF’s architectural mission to create buildings and places that make positive contributions to the built environment beyond their physical footprint.

“The opening of our new offices is the result of many years of practice in these locations and will bolster the reach of our New York and London operations,” says KPF President James von Klemperer. “As a firm, we’re excited to contribute innovative ideas to cities on the west coast, in continental Europe, and across Southeast Asia and look forward to being part of their respective futures.”
